

Feast 2017 Seminars

Revival

Fri, Oct 6 – Lee Gates

Lee will lead an interactive time of teaching regarding revivals in early America, sharing, and prayer.

Communion: Where does it come from?

Sat, Oct 7 – Steve Siefken

This seminar will discuss the many attributes of the Lord's Supper. We will start with a look at how communion was practiced in the Old Testament as well as the New Testament. We will conclude with an examination of the emblems and their relevance today.

The Last Prophetic Week

Sun, Oct 8 – Tony Bosserman

Are we close to THE LAST PROPHETIC WEEK OF DANIEL'S 70-WEEK PROPHECY? What unfulfilled prophecies pave the way for THE LAST PROPHETIC WEEK to unfold? And what all will happen during this 7-year period? Tony will take you through the Biblical texts that answer these questions, and give you an outline to take home and study.

The Heavens Declare

Sun (pm), Oct 8 – Bill Ennis

We're going to take a look at prophecy, past, present and future, in a place rarely looked at by modern Christian scholars. We're going to look up - at the heavens themselves. And we're going to discover that, even before Adam was created, YHVH had written the Gospel message in the heavens - in the stars - so that man would have a constant reminder of His plan of redemption.

Revelation Timeline

Mon, Oct 9 – Chauncey Navarro

The Bible gives us time markers for specific events. What are they? And what do we really know from scripture?

Happy Are Those Who Mourn

Mon (pm), Oct 9 – Brian Foy

Theologians hold that Christ's Sermon on the Mount establishes the standard for Christian ethics. The Beatitudes, within the sermon, state 'those that mourn are happy.' Is it feasible for someone to experience opposite emotions simultaneously? This apparent contradiction introduces a revolutionary standard to a world searching for elusive happiness. The Sermon on the Mount establishes the foundation for setting an upside down world right.

The Dark Night: Journey to the Heart of the Father

Tues, Oct 10 – Steph Ennis

Light is brightest when it shines in absolute darkness. This is the story of our Bible brothers and sisters—Joshua, Job, David, Ruth, Esther, Mary—as they searched for God in the midst of tragedy, grief, uncertainty and suffering. This story is also our story. If we truly seek Him in our darkest hours—with all our heart, soul, mind and strength—we will find Him in all His fullness!

Making Peace With Your Perfectionism

Wed, Oct 11 – Leslie Bosserman

Based on the wisdom of Matthew 6:34, this seminar will be discussion-based, and explore the biblical theme of "sufficiency" and how to find your "enough point" each day to create a life well-lived. Facilitated by Leslie Bosserman, a certified Professional Leadership Coach and mother of two, it is ideal for anyone who is struggling with perfectionism and needs to make peace with over-productivity. Come join us for some authentic dialogue around how to choose sufficiency over efficiency, paired with personal action steps and accountability, to help you shift your mindset and live with more awareness and acceptance!
